

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

ABSTRACTS OF PROTOCOLS

OF THE

TOWN CLERKS OF GLASGOW.

1919. RICHE—REID. 1 April, 1573, 2 p.m.

James Reid (son of q. Sir Martin Reid) and Jonet Patersoun, his mother, with consent of Umfrid M'Nair, her spouse, present and consenting, sold to Andrew Riche, merchant, citizen of Glasgow, a back tenement, under and above, with the pertinents, lying t.c., in the end of the close of a back tenement, on the south side of the street called Gallogait, between the lands of William Hervy on the east, and a waste piece of land of the said James on the west, a common vennel on the south, and the lands sometime of Mr. William Salmond on the north. Sasine given by Archibald Lyoun, bailie. Ratified by Jonet Patersoun in absence of her husband. Witnesses: Patrick Walker, merchant, John Clerk and William Stark, citizens. Property to be redeemable for 100 merks. Andrew Riche thereafter resigned the property in favour of Marion Riche, his daughter; reserving his own liferent.

Robert Smytht on the north; and a back hall, with cellar below, lying between the fore tenement of the said John Wrycht on the west, and the lands of William Lepar, conveyed to him by the said John Wricht, on the east. Sasine given by Archibald Lyone, bailie. Ratified by Marion Mure in absence of her husband. Witnesses: William Caulduell, cordiner, Adam Scott, junior, David Burell, and John Stobo, officer. Property to be redeemable for 40 merks.

1921. REID. 6 April, 1573, 9 a.m.

Sir Andrew Nasmytht, procurator and in name of Sir George Maxuell (conform to mandate subscribed at Tullibardyn, 30 March, 1573), acknowledged that he had received from James Reid the sum of £40 for redemption of an annualrent of 6 merks, payable furth of a back tenement of the said James, lying t.c., between the fore tenement built by q. Sir Martin Reid on the north, and the lands of William Salmond on the east. Sasine given to Reid by Archibald Lione, bailie. Witnesses: Thomas Miller, merchant, Umfrid M'Nair, citizens, Archibald Eglynton, and John Stobo, officer.

1922. ROS—THORNTOUN. 8 April, 1573, 6 p.m.

James Cuik, senior, acknowledged that he had received from Robert Ros of Thorntoun the sum of 100 merks, in consideration of which he renounced the rental right of the half of the five merk lands of Thorntoun¹ in favour of Robert Ros and Isabella Hammiltoun, spouses; and he also undertook to cause his wife to grant a similar renunciation. Done in the chamber of the notary. Witnesses: John Lyndsay, brother of Robert Lindsay of Dunrod, David Lindsaye, junior, John Cuik, and Archibald Eglintoun.

1923. SYMPLE—CATHCART—SPREULL. 9 April, 1573, 3 p.m.

Gabriel Symple, son and apparent heir of William Symple of Cathcart, and Margaret Spreull, spouses, produced a charter whereby William Symple of Cathcart granted to his son Gabriel the merk land of old extent called Palice of Cathcart, with the meadow called Kirkmedo, sometime occupied by q. Gabriel Symple of Cathcart; also the 20 s. land, old extent, called the Little Manis of Cathcart, occupied by John Thomsoun, junior; also 2 acres of land occupied by John Hervy; also the 6 s. 8 d. land, old extent, tilled (manurat) by John Hervy; also the 40 d. land, old extent, occupied by John Wry; lying in the barony of Cathcart and shire of Renfrew.² Charter subscribed 1924. CRAIG—MAXUELL—LYNDSAYE. 11 April, 1573, 9 a.m.

David Lindsaye of Kittoksyde, citizen of Glasgow, granted in feu-farm to Thomas Craig, cordiner and citizen, and Jonet Maxuell, spouses, a piece of the fore front and on the north side of an acre of arable land, lying t.c., in the croft called Mutland Croft, between the lands of Sir David Mayne¹ on the east, the lands of William Snype on the west, the street called Sancte Tenew on the north, and the tenement of the said David Lindsaye on the south; which piece so feued extended to 11 ells in length and 6 ells in breadth as the stobs were fixed, lying between the lands of the said Sir David Mayne on the east, and the remainder of the said acre on the other sides; and that for the sum of 20 s. yearly in name of feu-farm. Sasine given by Archibald Lyone, bailie. Witnesses: Andrew Thomsoun, John Craig, John Maxuell, James Frebarne, William Biggart, citizens, John Stobo, and John Moresoun, officers.

¹Sir David Mayne was a notary, and the successor of John Mayne in the possession of properties situated between Trongate and Bridgegate and elsewhere. (See protocols Nos. 73, 180, 188, 323, 359-60, etc.) The name of the first owner has been commemorated in the designation of a wynd which passed through or along his properties, the "vennel of John Mayn" being referred to in an instrument of sasine, dated 5 January, 1548 (Liber Collegii Nostre Domine, p. 116). The wynd still exists, but is one of those which the Corporation of Glasgow have, by the Improvements Act of 1897, obtained authority to close. At the date of the above protocol, Stockwellgait was beyond the west port, and, consequently, the Old Wynd, otherwise called Lindsay's Wester Wynd, formed the westmost opening within the city, between the Trongate and the Bridgegate. Not many years afterwards the New or Lindsay's Easter Wynd is noticed in the records, but unless it was in existence in 1573, Maynes Wynd must have been the next opening between the two thoroughfares. Eastward of Maynes Wynd was the Alley, on each side of which were the New Kirk yards, transmissions of which are frequently referred to in the protocols. At the beginning of last century, these lanes were felt to be inadequate for increasing traffic, and, as narrated in a council minute, dated 25 April, 1722, "the toun, with great charge and expense, purchased several lands and yards in the Tronegate, opposite to the Candlerig Street, for making of a cross street in the middle of the Tronegate, from the foot of the Candlerig Street to the Bridgegate Street . . . and that not only for beautifying the city, but also for the better accommodation of the inhabitants and people resorting thereto, and for the more easie passage from one street to another . . . And do statut and appoynt that the street be designed for hereafter by the name of Kings Street" (MS. Council Records, xx. p. 496). Some of the properties acquired by the town council at that time were described in the titles deeds as bounded on the east by the Alley, and on the west by Maynes Wynd. The lots on each side of King Street were disposed of on condition that a uniform building plan should be adhered to, and it was stipulated "that the said street be 30 foot of breadth betwixt the strands or gutter, on each syde thereof, and 2½ foot further betwixt the strands or gutters and the front of the houses, making in all 35 foot in breadth." (Ib.) It was probably in consequence of its proximity to the new and spacious street that John Maynes vennel acquired its alternative designation of the Back Wynd.

1929. BLAKWOD—PIRRY. 14 April, 1573, 3 p.m.

Andrew Riche, merchant, citizen, acknowledged that he had received from John Blakuod, hammerman, £22 for redemption of a barn, with piece of yard on the north side thereof, and the pertinents, lying t.e., on the south side of the street of St. Teneu, between the lands of Alexander Pirry on the north, the croft of St. Teneu on the south, the lands of George Brounside on the west, and the lands of Walter King on the east. Sasine given to Blakuod by Archibald Lyoun, bailie. Riche also bound himself to relieve the property from any claims by the heirs of q. Margaret Riche, his daughter. Witnesses: William Andersoun, Patrick Bogill, burgess, John Foulter and John Stobo, officers.

1930. PIRRY—BOGILL. Eisdem die et hora.

John Blakwod, hammerman and citizen, with consent of Robert Blakuod, his son and apparent heir, sold to Alexander Pirry, citizen, and Margaret Bogill, spouses, the barn, with piece of yard and pertinents, mentioned in No. 1929. Sasine given by Archibald Lyoun, bailie. Same witnesses as in No. 1929.

1931. CAMPBELL—LYONE. Die prescripto, 6 p.m.

Marion Gayne, spouse of John Campbell, citizen, with his consent, resigned in favour of William Campbell, son of q. Andrew Campbell and her, the west barn, with half of the yard, situated at the back thereof, and also of another yard adjacent, with the pertinents, lying t.e., on the north side of the street of St. Teneu, between the barn and lands of q. James Dalgleis on the west, the lands and barn of the said Marion and q. Andrew on the east, and the Long Croft on the north. Sasine given by Archibald Lyone, bailie. ¹The lands of Carmyle, in the parish of Old Monkland, are situated on the right bank of the Clyde, about four miles south-east of Glasgow Cross. Under the ancient name of Kermil they appear on record, in the twelfth century, as a gift from Herbert, bishop of Glasgow (1147-64) to the abbey of Newbotle. Kings and Popes from time to time confirmed the lands to the abbey; but in the chartulary a note appended to the transcript of a papal bull, dated 1263, shows that the monks had then ceased to be owners (Registrum de Neubotle—Bannatyne Club, pp. 91, 123, 181, 191, 316). How the change occurred is explained in a charter granted by John de Cheyam, bishop of Glasgow, on 11 June, 1268, it being there narrated that the bishop had, with his own money, and with the help of Sir Reginald of Irewyn, sometime archdeacon of Glasgow, purchased or redeemed the land of Kermil, with its pertinents, and being zealous for the increase of divine service in the church of Glasgow, he dedicated the property (excepting the new mill which he had erected on the water of Clyde) in pure and perpetual alms, for the sustenance of three chaplains or priests to celebrate divine service in the church of Glasgow, for the weal of his soul and of the souls of archdeacon Reginald and of all their predecessors and successors for ever. The dean and chapter were authorised to appoint the chaplains when vacancies occurred, and a malediction was invoked on any who should violate the purpose of the endowment (Registrum Episcopatus Glasguensis, pp. 178-9). Bishop John's pious arrangements, however, seem to have been disregarded by Robert Wischard, who succeeded to the bishopric in 1272; and his interference led the dean and chapter, in the year 1275, to appeal to the pope for redress. The papal court thereupon authorised the bishops of Dunblane and Argyle to investigate the complaint, and some documents relating to the judicial procedure, but not the final decision, will be found in the printed Register (ib. pp. 183-9). That the lands ultimately reverted to the bishopric is indicated by the fact that during the period embraced in the printed Rental Book (1510-70) the entries of rentalles in Carmyle lands are somewhat numerous. The transfer by Armour to Stewart referred to in the text is apparently that entered in the Rental Book on 10 February, 1564-5, though the value is there stated at half a merk less than it is in the protocol: "Alexander Stewart is rentalit in xx s. land in Uver Carmyl, be consent and venditioun of David Armour, last rentalit thairin" (Diocesan Registers—Grapian Club, i. p. 183).

lands of John Wilsoun on the west. Sasine given by Mr. Adam Walles, bailie. Margaret Woddrop and her heirs to pay 20 s yearly in name of annualrent (annui census). Witnesses: Thomas Spang, merchant, John Moresone and John Stobo, officers.

1940. GLEN. 4 May, 1573, 3 p.m.

Jonet Andersoun, sometime affianced (affidata) to John Glen, junior, and vested in the property aftermentioned on account of the marriage (pretextu matrimonii) formerly intended to be solemnised; for certain causes then moving her, and because the said marriage was not then to take place, resigned and renounced in favour of the said John Glen any claim she had to a hall, with loft (solario), brewery, weaver's workshop (officina textoria), and the west half of a yard at the back of the houses, lying t.c., on the west side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, beside the back tenement of Alan Wrycht; between the lands of John Wilsoun on the north, the common vennel on the south, the other half of the yard on the east, and the remainder of the tenement on the west. Sasine given by Archibald Lyoun, bailie. Witnesses: John Glen, senior, Archibald Lettrik, and Robert Lettrik, officer.

1941. STEWARD—MYNTO. 5 May, 1573, 11 a.m.

John Steward of Mynto, knight, resigned in favour of Mathew Steward, his elder son, and Jonet Steward, spouses, his tenement, fore and back, with yard and pertinents, lying t.c., on the south side of the street called Drygate, between the lands of the archdeacon of Glasgow and of John Spreull on the west, the lands of lord Kyncaid and the manse of the prebend of Cambuslayng¹ on the east, and the street on the north;² and that ¹The site of Cambuslang manse is described in No. 983.

²The Stewarts of Mynto possessed the Drygate property from early times; and subsequent to the Reformation Sir Mathew Stewart of Mynto acquired the adjoining manse of the archdeacon. (See Dr. Murray's "Rottenrow"; Regality Club, 3rd series, pt. ii. pp. 55, 56). M'Ure, in his History of Glasgow, mentions that Stewart's property was acquired by the Dowager Marchioness of Montrose, "where the family has frequently resided ever since" (Edition 1836, p. 47). The editor of the 1836 edition adds: "The Duke of Montrose sold this property to Gavin Pettigrew about the year 1746. From John, the nephew of Gavin, it was purchased by the Misses Pettigrew; it now belongs to Mrs. Wilson, the only surviving sister" (Ib.) In 1849, the Prison Commissioners bought the old lodging for an extension of their premises (Sasine Register, 20 April, 1849); but they did not require the whole area, and when the Glasgow Improvements Trustees diverted the High Street, under the powers contained in their act of 1867, a portion of it was thrown into the new thoroughfare. The conveyance by the Prison Commissioners to the Improvements Trustees (Purchase 1010; K1, 37-9, 42-4. 28-9 on plan; Sasine Reg., 24 May, 1875, vol. 636, fol. 83) contains various properties; but one portion is described as part of "that great tenement of land and lodging, high and laigh, back and fore, with the close, yard, well, and pertinents, which sometime belonged to the laird of Minto, upon the south side of that street called Drygate . . . with the whole new buildings, wash house, and office houses, made upon the said lands by James, late Duke of Montrose."

in special clause of warrandice of the lands of Westir Craiggis and mill thereof from payment of an annualrent of 14 bolls meal (furine) and 6 bolls barley (ordei) yearly, upliftable by Mr. David Conyghame and Katherine Wallace, spouses, and conveyed to them by the said Mathew and Jonet, at desire of the said John,¹ in warrandice of the 50 s. land of Hamiltounes-ferme, occupied by Andrew Fische, John Flemyng, and Malcolm Scott, lying in the parish of Ruglyn, conveyed by the said John to the said Mr. David and Katherine,²—so that if the said lands of Craiggis or mill thereof, and the said Mathew and Jonet should happen to be distrained or troubled for the said victual duty, then they should have right to possess the said tenement for their relief. Sasine given by Mr. Adam Wallace, bailie. Witnesses: Archibald Steward of Castelmylk, John Steward of Bowhous, and John Steward of Dungrane.

Mr. David Conyghame, rector of Inchealcloch, and Katherine Wallace, spouses, produced a charter whereby Mathew Steward, younger of Mynto, and Jonet Steward, spouses, conveyed to them, and l.l., an annualrent of 14 bolls oatmeal (farine avenatice) and 6 bolls barley (ordei) yearly, to be uplifted furth of the lands of Wester Craiggis,¹ with mill and pertinents, lying in the parish of Glasgow and regality thereof; and that in special warrandice of the 50 s. land, part of the £5 land of Hammiltone-ferme mentioned in No. 1943. Charter subscribed and sealed at Glasgow, 5 May, 1573, before same witnesses as in charter mentioned in No. 1943. Sasine given on the ground of the lands, and at the door of the mill, by Umfrid Conyghame of Auchinbar, as bailie in hac parte. Witnesses: Alexander Conyghame of Craganis, Donald Conyghame, son of the said Umfrid, William Forrett, son of q. Thomas Forret, citizen, and John Walker, servitor to the said Mr. David.

1945. BOYDE. 9 May, 1573, 9 a.m.

William Portarfeld, son and apparent heir of Mr. John Portarfeld of that ilk, in consideration of the price of 100 merks, sold to Isabella Boyde, a minor, daughter of James Boyde of Hullirhill, an annualrent of 10 merks Scots furth of a fore tenement, under and above, with the pertinents, lying t.c., on the west side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, between the lands of q. James Grhame on the south, and of William Hiegate on the north. Sasine given by George ¹Wester Craigs formerly belonged to the Subdeanery of Glasgow, but in the year 1564, James Hamilton, bishop of Lismore and subdean of Glasgow, conveyed the property to Alexander Stewart, tutor of Castlemilk. From Stewart's daughters Wester Craigs, in 1569, passed to James Stewart, from whom it was about the same time acquired by Mathew Stewart, son and apparent heir of Sir John Stewart of Minto. In 1650 the Merchants' House of Glasgow acquired from Sir Ludovic Stewart of Minto the greater portion of both Easter and Wester Craigs, and on the latter lands the cemetery known as the Necropolis was opened in 1833 (Dr. Hill's "Merchants' House of Glasgow," pp. 42, 44).

Elphinstoun, bailie. Annualrent redeemable for 100 merks. Witnesses: Archibald Lione, bailie, James Boyd, father of the said Isabella, John Watsoun, junior, Andrew Heriot, and Archibald Eglintoun.

1946. CALDERUOD—MURE. 9 May, 1573, 3 p.m.

Mr. Adam Wallace, bailie, gave sasine to William Mure, eldest son of James Mure, as heir of q. John Wyzett, his grandfather, and of his said father, of a tenement of land, fore and back, with yard and pertinents, lying t.c., on the east side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, between the lands of Sir John Mwn on the north, the lands sometime of James Mure on the south, and the street on the west. Thereafter, William Mure sold the property to Andrew Calderwod, citizen, and Giles Mure, spouses, to whom the bailie gave sasine. Witnesses: Mathew Wilsoun, citizen, Mr. James Stirlyng, Robert Blayr, notary, and David Calderuod. Property to be redeemable for 80 merks, with 8 merks of yearly profit.

1947. GILMOUR. 16 May, 1573, 11 a.m.

Jonet Gilmour, one of the three daughters and heirs of q. Cuthbert Gilmour, citizen, and spouse of Robert Crawford, and he for his interest, in consideration of a sum of money paid to them by John Gilmour, citizen, and Katherine Blak, spouses, renounced a reversion granted to the said Jonet and Robert by the said John and Katherine, containing the sum of 130 merks, and all other reversions for redemption of the third part of two tenements, fore and back, with yards and pertinents, lying t.c., on the north side of the street leading from the South Nether Port to the great bridge over the Clyde, between the lands of q. ¹On 23 August, 1609, King James VI. granted to James Hammiltoun, merchant, burgess of Glasgow, a feu charter of the dwellinghouse (hospitium), built and waste, with close, well and yard, which sometime belonged to the precentor of Glasgow. The property is there described as lying between the manses (mansiones) and yards of the vicars of the choir on the west and north, the dwellinghouse (hospitium) and yards, sometime of the chancellor, on the east, and the cemetery on the south. The feu-duty was 10s. with 8d. of augmentation (Registrum Magnum Sigilli, vii. No. 138).

²By the chaplains are probably meant the vicars of the choir. See "The Rottenrow" (Regality Club), 3d series, p. 49.

³The charter was confirmed by King James VI. on 23 October, 1573. As narrated in the confirmation the charter provided for payment to the chaplains of the church of Glasgow (who had granted the manse or its site in feu-farm) of 50s. of old farm, and to the rector of 2s. in augmentation of rental. Farther, Gilbert Thorntoun and his spouse were not to be entitled to alienate the property without consent of the rector for whom hospitality in the manse was reserved during his residence (Registrum Magni Sigilli, iv. back, with pertinents, lying t.c., on the west side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, between the lands sometime of Sir Andrew Walker, then of Robert Flemyng, on the north, and the lands of the new church of St. Mary, then belonging to John Clerk and the heirs of q. (blank) Walker on the south, and the street on the east. Thereafter Sir Bartholomew sold to Mathew Watsoun, flesher, citizen, and Margaret Pady, his spouse, the back tenement, with houses, close, yard, and pertinents, then occupied by them; lying between the fore tenement on the east, and the lands of David Lyndsaye on the west; with free ingress and egress by the gate and close of the fore tenement. Witnesses: William Trumble, merchant, Mathew Young in Egleschem, Robert Lettrik and John Stobo, officers. Mathew Watsoun and spouse undertook to grant a letter of reversion for redemption of the property conveyed to them on payment of 100 merks.

1992. MAXUELL—BOGTOUN. 18 November, 1573, 3 p.m.

William Glen, baker, and spouse, in presence of George Elphinstoun, bailie, renounced in favour of John Maxuell in Bogtoun, all right they had to a tenement, fore and back, with yard and pertinents, lying t.c., on the west side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, between the lands of Thomas Malyne on the north, and the lands of William Hegat on the south. Sasine given by the bailie to Maxwell. Witnesses: Michael Barde, notary, David Landes, Michael Pudzen, and Thomas Bogle, baker.

1993. SCHAKSCHAW. 24 November, 1573, 10 a.m.

James Flemyng, bailie, gave sasine to John Steward, of Bowhous, as attorney and in name of John Schakschaw, senior, as heir of William Schakschaw, his father, of (1) 5 roods of open land lying in the croft called Kynclayt, between the lands of John Wilsoun on the east, and the lands of Robert Mure on the west; (2) a fore tenement, with 3 ells of land at the back, south half of the back close, and south side of a yard on the east side of the city, between the lands of Archibald Hommill on the south, the lands of John Lyndsaye and the north side of the back close and yard on the north, the burn of Malyndon on the east, and the street on the west; (3) the half of a barn with yard adjacent on the north side of the street leading from the South Nether Port to the great bridge over the Clyde, and on the east side of the back close, between the lands of John Patersoun on the north, the lands of q. (blank) Gilmour on the south, and the close on the west; (4) an annualrent of 8s. yearly furth of a tenement, with yard and pertinents, sometime belonging to q. Alexander Carnbe, and then to James Taylor, on the south side of the street leading from the South Port to the bridge of Clyde, between the lands of Ninian M'Litster on the west, and the lands of q. John Hill on the east. Thereafter Sir George Bronsyd, procurator and in name of the said John Schakschaw, senior, resigned the properties and annualrent in favour of John Schakschaw, junior (brother german of John Schakschaw, senior), and Jonet Steward, his spouse, and l.l., to whom the bailie gave sasine. Witnesses: John Benyng, messenger at arms (armigero), Archibald Craig, cordiner, David Grhame, junior, John Boyd, John Gibsoun, citizens, and James Andersoun, officer.

1994. SCHAKSCHAW—STEWARD. Die prescripto, 10 a.m.

John Schakschaw, junior, son of q. William Schakschaw, resigned in favour of himself and Jonet Steward, his spouse, and l.l., a tenement with yard and pertinents, lying t.c., on the south side of the street leading from the South Nether Port to the great bridge over the Clyde, between the lands of Ninian M'Litster on the east, and the lands of John Chalmeris on the west. Same witnesses as in No. 1993.

1995. GIBSONE. Eadem stante hora.

James Gibsoun, son of q. James Gibsoun, in presence of James Flemyng, bailie, solemnly protested that the granting of sasine to John Schakschaw and his spouse should not prejudice him (James Gibsoun) or the right which he had to the lands and tenements mentioned in Nos. 1993 and 1994, to which he asserted he had a special title. Same witnesses as in No. 1993.

1996. CORBETT. 24 November, 1573, 3 p.m.

f. 136.

George Elphinstoun, bailie, gave sasine to James Corbet, as heir of q. pertinents, belonging to the said David Landes, lying between the lands of Robert Young and James Craig on the south, the north side of the close of the said tenement on the north, and the burn of Malyndoner on the east. Reserving the liferent of the annualrent of 9 merks to Marion Landes, mother of James Corbet. Witnesses: John Steward of Bowhous, David Landes, William Anderson, maltman, citizens, John Michell in Wyndelaw, John Stobo, Robert Lettrik, and James Andersoun, officers.

1997. MICHELL. 24 November, 1573, 3 p.m.

George Elphinstoun, bailie, gave sasine to John Michell in Wyndelaw, as heir of Robert Blakuod (son of John Blakuod, smith), being related to him in the second degree of consanguinity, of three roods of open land in the croft called St. Teneu, between the lands of James Flemyng on the west, the common footpath (semitam) leading to the well called St. Teneu on the east, and Glasgow Green on the south. Reserving the liferent of the property to the said John Blackuod. Witnesses: John Steward of Bowhous, William Andersoun, maltman, Archibald Craig, citizens, Sir George Brounside, notary, Robert Lettrik, John Stobo, and James Anderson, officer. Thereafter John Michell, as heir of q. Robert Blakuod, ratified the resignation made by the latter of a rig or rood of land in St. Tenewis Croft in favour of George Brounside.

1998. PATERSONE—DIKSONE. 14 December, 1573, 3 p.m.

David Lyndsaye of Kittokside, citizen, granted in feu-farm to John Patersoun, skinner or tanner (pellioni), and Cristina Diksoun, spouses, a piece of land on the south side of an acre of land in Mutland Croft, extending to two roods in length with a breadth of three rigs, excepting a passage three ells in width¹ lying t.c., in the croft called Muteland Croft, between the said passage on the east, the remainder of said acre on the north, the lands

¹This passage was perhaps the original of what is now called the New or Lindsay's Easter Wynd. See No. 1924. The Lindsays of Dunrod and Kittokside were long connected with Glasgow as owners of property and otherwise. Robert Lindsay of Dunrod was provost of Glasgow in 1561-2 (Protocol No. 683). The lands of Kittokside, near Carmunnock, were confirmed by King Robert II. to John of Lyndesay of Dunrod on 12 November, 1383 (Reg. Mag. Sig. i. p. 167, No. 83); and by King James IV. to David Lindesay, grandson of Alexander Lindesay of Dunrod, on 18 April, 1502 (Ib. ii. No. 2610), and there were subsequent confirmations to members of the family; but about the year 1620 Alexander Lyndsay of Dunrod disposed of the property to James Hammiltoun of Peill (Ib. viii. No. 719). According to the "Ordnance Gazetteer," Dunrod was an ancient barony in the parish of Inverkip, Renfrewshire, which belonged to the Lindsays from the time of King Robert the Bruce till the year 1619; but in crown charters the lands are described not as a barony but as the 10 merk land, old extent, of Dunrod, with tower, manor place, grain and fulling mills, etc. (Ib. vii. No. 2023; viii. No. 725). Archibald Stewart of Ardgowane was the purchaser in 1619.

of David Hoggisyard on the west, and the lands of John Arbuckle and James Andersoun on the south; and that for the payment of 33s. 4d. yearly in name of feu-farm, and the feuars to uphold the gate of the close for preserving the croft from all damage of animals and destruction of crops (segetum) till another tenement or house is built on the north. Sasine given by Archibald Lionne, bailie. Witnesses: John Woddrow, tanner, John Snype, cordiner, James Andersone and John Stobo, officers.

³ Archbishop Betoun continued, at least till January, 1568-9, to grant or sanction charters of lands belonging to the See of Glasgow (see protocol No. 1608). John Porterfield, the first of the post-Reformation bishops, held office on 20 October, 1571, when he consented to him the mill of Partick, miller's house, and mill lands, then occupied by John Pawtone, with the astricted multures of that part of the barony of Glasgw called Govane Warde and Partik Warde,¹ as well of growing grain in the said wards as belonging to the said mill by custom, observance, or any other mode; with the services accustomed to be done to the said mill by the astricted tenants. Charter subscribed by the bishop and by the dean and other canons of the chapter, and sealed with the round seal of the bishop and the seal of the chapter, at Glasgou, 16 February, 1573-4, in presence of Robert lord Boyde, provost of Glasgou, Mr. Andrew Haye, rector of Renfrew, John Chalmeris of Corraycht, William Hegate, notary public, John Kennedy of Carlok and Fergus Kennedy, servitors to the archbishop.² Sasine given by Robert lord Boyde as bailie in hac parte.

the alienation of the parson of Glasgou's manse (foot-note to protocol 1734), but the precise dates of his admission and demission are not known. At a conference between commissioners of the King and Kirk, held at Leith in January, 1571-2, various arrangements with regard to ecclesiastical affairs were concluded, and provision was made for the retention and appointment of bishops and archbishops (see Privy Council Register, II. pp. 106-7; Calderwood's History of the Kirk of Scotland, III. pp. 170-96). The chapter of Glasgou, it is there stated, "consisteth in threttie-two chanonreis or prebendreis, founded on distinct and severall benefices," which are specified. "Of the present possessours of the benefices, onlie six are entered in the functioun of the ministrie, which sall be of the chapter for electioun of the archbishop"; but to these six the ministers of nineteen parishes were "adjoyned." James Boyd of Trochrig, the archbishop referred to in the text, after being "nominat, elect and consecrat archebisshop of Glasgou," appeared before the privy council at Holyrood, on 9 November, 1573, and took the oath; and at the same time he got possession of the castle of Glasgou, of which Sir John Stewart of Mynto had been the keeper since May, 1568 (Privy Council Reg. II. pp. 301-2). An entry in the Glasgou accounts bears that on 12 November the sum of 20s. was paid "for ane galloun of wyne, gevin and presentit to my lord of Glasgou quhen he was admittit Bisshop" (Glasgou Rec. I. p. 450).

² The charter by the archbishop and chapter, as narrated in crown charter of confirmation, dated 10 March, 1573-4 (Reg. Mag. Sig. IV. No. 2199), was granted at the desire of the Regent Morton, as a reward to Captain Crawford for his services in capturing Dumbarton Castle (2 April, 1571), and assisting at the siege of Edinburgh Castle. More than two years previously, however, Partick Mill had been granted in feu to Captain Crawford. By an act, dated 19 January, 1571-2, Regent Mar, and the lords of the privy council, required the dean and chapter to give their consent to the alienation, but "thay (the dean and chapter) wer unwilling to enter a preparative consenting to the feu of the landis and rowmes, being of the parimony of the said archebisshoprik" (Privy Council Reg. II. p. 110); and apparently the consent asked was not given till after a renewed request made by Regent Morton. The feu-duty, stipulated by the charter as payable to the archbishop, consisted of 7 chalders oatmeal and 7 chalders malt, as old term, with 8 bolls meal and 8 bolls malt in augmentation; total, 15 chalders of victual, or 10 merks for each chaldar. Partick Mill subsequently reverted to the bishopric, as in 1608 it was held by tacksmen of the bishop. At that time the magistrates and council of Glasgou obtained a lease of the mill (Glasgou Rec. I. pp. 279-80; II. pp. 555-67), and they possessed it as rentallars, under the bishop and the crown respectively, till the year 1738. On 4 February, 1737, the magistrates and council presented a petition to the lords of His Majesty's treasury "setting furth that the city has for centurys backward been kindly tennents and rentalars in the Milln of Partick, belonging formerly to the archbishop of Glasgou, paying a duty of 50 bolls malt for the milln, and 8 bolls victual for 4 acres of land, and 10 merks and some hens for the 2016. REID—HEGATE. 19 February, 1573-4, 8 a.m.

James Flemyng, bailie, gave sasine to John Reid, as heir of q. Mathew Reid, citizen, his father, of tenements, with houses and yards, on the south side of the street called Dryate, between the lands of George Kirkland on the east, and other lands on the west. Thereafter, John Reid sold the properties to William Hegate, citizen, to whom the bailie gave sasine. Witnesses: Robert Craufurde, grain dealer (granatorio), Paisley, John Grhame, citizen of Glasgow, and Robert Lettrik, officer. Property to be redeemable for £21 14 s. 10 d.

2017. COCHRANE. 25 February, 1573-4, 8 a.m.

Michael Barde, procurator and in name of John Steward of Mynto, knight, resigned in favour of David Cochrane, two upper merchant booths, then occupied by John Wylie and Patrick Glen, merchants, lying discontinuous, one being part of a great fore tenement, built by q. Mr. James Houston, subdean of Glasgow, on the west side of the street leading from the market cross to the South Port, between the lands of Mathew Wilsoun millar's house. That when prelacy was suppressed in Scotland it was the practice of the crown to grant feu rights to the kindly tennents and possessors of their temporality or lands belonging to them. That the rentallers in the bishoprick of Glasgow have been adjudged to have a right perpetual, of the nature of a copyhold, and for that reason, upon application, feu rights were never denyd them. That this city has not had any profitable bargain of this rental, the rent being very high, and were willing to have surrendered their right, and under form of instrument tendered the keys of the milln in the court of exchequer, while Baron Smith presided in the exchequer, in order to be freed of the milln duty, but the court refused to accept of the surrender, and declared that they would subject the city, nevertheless, to the payment of the accustomed duty, unless an exemption was procured by grant from the crown. That this city have been so ancient kindly possessors and rentallers they are willing to continue in the payment of the duty; and, in order to enable them to make the milln (which at present is a burden upon them) of some profit to the city, and to the country in general, to lay out money in the improvement thereof, if his Majesty be pleased to grant a feu right of the said milln and others for payment of the usual duty in name of feu-farm" (MS. Council Record, xxiii. p. 423). The desire of the magistrates and council was complied with and a crown charter was granted in their favour on 3 July, 1738 (MS. Inventory of Writs, ii. p. 130, b. 26). The mill was retained by the city till 1809, when it was sold "to John Gibson, Robert Shaw, Thomas Douglas, and John Douglas . . . in consideration of the sum of £400 stg., and payment and performance of the sums, victual, rent, and services mentioned in the Disposition" (MS. Council Record, xlv. p. 96.) It is understood that the Bishop Grain Mills, at 206 Old Dumbarton Road, on the left bank of the Kelvin, now occupy the site of the old Partick Mill. Mr. James White, joint proprietor of the existing mills, has prepared a paper to be read before the Glasgow Archaeological Society, narrating the early history of the property, and to that paper, when it appears in the Society's proceedings, reference may be made for further particulars.

2020. NORWELL. 4 March, 1573-4, 10 a.m.

James Flemyng, bailie, gave sasine to Mathew Norvell, as heir of q. David Norvell, his brother german, of a back tenement, with houses built thereon, belonging sometime to q. Andrew Norvell, lying t.c., on the west side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, at the back of the fore tenement then belonging to John Flemyng, between the lands of q. William Ralstoun on the south and east, the lands of John Flemyng on the west, and the lands of Sir John Mwn on the north. Witnesses: Sir Robert Watsoun, Gavin Grhame, Andrew Spang, John Johnsoun alias Schelis, John Frebarne, and James Andersone, officer.

2021. WATSOUN. Eodem die, 10 a.m.

f. 146. Mathew Norvell, with consent of Jonet Cochrane, his mother, sold to Sir Robert Watsoun an annualrent of 10 merks Scots, payable furth of the property mentioned in No. 2020; and that for the sum of 100 merks paid to the said Mathew. Sasine given by James Flemyng, bailie. The annualrent to be payable furth of the nether new hall, under and above, lying in the end of the close, to the extent of the farm or rent thereof, and the balance was to be uplifted furth of the remainder of the back tenement. Witnesses: Gavin Grhame, Andrew Spang, John Johnsoun alias Schelis, John Frebarne, junior, and James Andersoun, officer. Annualrent to be redeemable for 100 merks.

2022. HALL—BROWNE. 5 March, 1573-4, 4 p.m.

Allan Wricht, citizen, and Elizabeth Riche, spouses, and Jonet Downy, daughter of q. John Downy, after premonition made to them by David Hall, son and heir of q. William Hall, citizen, assignee constituted by q. Robert Smyth, in and to the letter of reversion aftermentioned, acknowledged that they had received from David, as heir of William, the sum of £57 9s. 1d., contained in a reversioun granted by Alan and Elizabeth, spouses, to q. Robert Smyth, for redemption of a fore upper house, with booth or house under the same, and the pertinents, extending to the equal half of a fore tenement, under and above, sometime belonging to q. Robert, lying t.c., on the east side of the street leading from the metropolitan church to the market cross, between the other half of the said tenement, sometime belonging to q. Robert Smith, and then to Alan Wrycht, on the north, the lands of John Wricht on the south, and the public street on the west. Therefore,

Alan and Elizabeth, spouses, and Jonet Downy, acknowledged the property to be redeemed, and they renounced all right thereto, and resigned the same in favour of the said David Hall, and Agnes Browne, his spouse, to whom Archibald Lyone, bailie, gave sasine. Witnesses: John Steward of Bowhous, Michael Barde, William Watt, James Riche, John Flemyng, Archibald Mure, citizens, and James Andersoun, officer.

2033. HILL—HILL. 7 April, 1574, 2 p.m.

Jonet Hill, senior, spouse of John Robesoun, burgess of Renfrew, and Elizabeth Hill, spouse of James Patersoun in Govane, two of the three daughters of q. John Hill of Hillok and Jonet Hillok, spouses, produced a precept whereby James, archbishop of Glasgow, charged George Elphinstoun of Blythisuod, as bailie in hac parte, to give to Jonet and Elizabeth, as two of the three heirs-portioners of their father and mother (conform to the faithful inquisition taken and made by certain persons of the city and barony of Glasgow, and retoured to the archbishop's chapel)¹, sasine of two third

f. 151.

¹ "Ad capellam nostram." In Ducange one sense of capella is given as equivalent to cancellaria; and to this definition may be traced the use to which the word was applied in connection with the services of heirs in Scotland. The King's chapel (capella Regie), from which writs relating to the making up of heirs' titles, technically called services, were issued, and to which, after inquisition, such writs were retoured (i.e., returned), was simply the chancery or chancery office; and such nomenclature was also extended to subordinate judicatories. Erskine, in his Institute, says:—"A lord of regality had a chancery proper shares of the lands of Hillok, with the pertinents, lying in the town of Mekle Govan, barony of Glasgu and shire of Renfrew; which lands were held of the archbishop as lord superior; the vassals rendering therefor three suits in the archbishops courts as well in the city as the barony, with all other services used and wont; and said lands were then valued at 4 merks Scots yearly, and were so valued in time of peace¹ (tempore pacis). Precept subscribed by the bishop, and his round seal appended, at Glasgou, 6 April, 1574. Sasine given on the ground of the lands, in terms of the precept. to his jurisdiction, from whence he might issue briefes to his bailie for the service of heirs; and the service proceeding on such brief, when recorded in the books of the regality, was as effectual as a retour on a briefe issuing from the King's chancery" (Institute tit. iv. s. 7). By a decision on 8 December, 1631, the court of session sustained a service before the bailie of the regality of Dumfermling, "who has their own chappel, and so it was not necessary to be retoured to the King's chancellary" (Durie, p. 606). The charter by King James II. in 1450, erecting the regality of Glasgou, contains an express grant of chapel—cum capella—and subsequent charters renewed the privilege (Glasgou Charters, ii. pp. 30, 62, etc.) See No. 1314.

¹ One of the heads of a briefe of service required the inquest, in compliance with the statute James III., 1474, c. 10, to report "quhat the land was of avall of the auld, and the very avall that it is worthe and gives the day of the serving of the said breif." The earlier valuation—supposed to be that of the time of King Alexander III.—was called the old extent, and the other valuation the new extent. One purpose of the "new extent" was the ascertainment of the amount payable by vassals to their superiors on entry, while sometimes the one and sometimes the other extent was used as the basis of national taxation. It may here be interesting to quote what is said by Sir John Skene, lord clerk register, on the subject of extents for retour purposes, especially as his remarks were penned shortly after the date of the protocol:—"Extent of landes signifies the rents, profitis and issues of the samin, quhair of there is twa kindes, the auld extent and the new extent. For it appeiris that the rental and valour of landes has been taxed and liquidat to ane certaine summe of silver, conforme to the profitis and dewties quhilk the landes payed at that time quhilk is called the auld and first extent tempore pacis. Bot because the revenues and dewties of landes be progress of time did increase and grow mair and mair, ane other taxatioun and extent was maid in the time of peace, as the former extent, conforme to the profitis augmented, quhilk therefore is called the new or second extent." It will be observed that both old and new valuations apply to the "time of peace," in regard to which Skene offers this explanation:—"For tempore belli, or in time of weire, there is na ordinar or certain extent of landes prescribed be ony law; for in sik time, either the landes are waste and are not labourd, or the landes lordes servis in proper persone, and it is na reason that they suld baith make personal service, and also pay extent or taxation." Skene states that the lords of session had in 1541 held that the new extent should be quadruple the old, and suggests that this rule "suld be generallie used in retouring of landes to the King's chancellarie and uthers chappelles, albeit the samin is nocht perpetuallie observed." (Skene's De Verborum Significatione, voce Extent). The printed Retours of the Services of Heirs (ad Capellam Domini Regis) show great variety in the proportions between the two valuations, and it is probable that at first, instead of a fixed ratio, each case was judged on its own merits. Latterly, it was the practice not to make a new valuation on the occasion of a new inquest, but merely to adopt the valuation contained in a previous retour. In cases, also, where landes were held in feu, the feu-duty was inserted as the "new extent," because it was this which determined the amount of the superior's claims. For these reasons the "new extent," as given in retours, cannot always be relied on as showing the actual value of landes at the date of inquisition. In the case of Hillok, mentioned in the text, old and new extent were identical, probably because the landes had not long formed a separate holding and there was no record of any other valuation.

Archibald Lyone, bailie, gave sasine to Margaret Hall, spouse of Dowgall Campbell, as heir of q. Jonet Flemyng, her mother of (1) a tenement of land, fore and back, with yard and pertinents, lying t.c., on the north side of the Gallogate, between the lands of q. George Colquhoun on the west, and the lands of q. Sir Martin Reid on the east; (2) a barn, with rig of land at the side (citra) of the Gallogate burn, on the north side of the street leading to the former (olim) common muir, between the lands of James Wilsoun and of q. John Woddrop on the east, and the lands of Mr. David Wilsone on the west; (3) a croft of open land (terre campestris) commonly called Round Croft, with the pertinents, lying on the south side of the street at (citra) the bridge of Gallogaitburn, leading to the common muir, between the lands of George Herbertsoun on the east, and the common streets or roads (communes vias) on the other three sides. Thereafter, Margaret Hall resigned the properties in favour of herself and Dougall Campbell, her spouse, and l.l. Witnesses: James Flemyng, bailie, John Wilsoun, George Young, citizens, Robert Lettrik and John Stobo, officers.

2079. COLQUHOUNE. 2 September, 1574, 5 p.m.

William Donaldsoun, citizen, sold (first) to Thomas Spang, citizen (1) a barn, with yard and an acre of land adjacent, lying on the north side of the street called Rattonraw, at the head thereof, between the lands of John Huchesoun on the west, the barn of Elizabeth Colquhoun and the lands of Thomas Spang, John Spreull, and q. Mr. James Blair, on the east, the street on the south, and a ditch or goit (fossam lie goit)¹ on the north; and (2) an annualrent of 20 s., payable furth of a barn, with piece of land adjacent, then belonging to Thomas Spang, lying on the south side of the High Street and Rottenrow was lowered four feet (Cleland's Annals, 1829, p. 473), but previous to that alteration and other levelling the northward street crossed a deep hollow, through which the Gyrrh Burn found its way to the Malyndoner. In a list of common sewers constructed within the royalty previous to 1817, Cleland specifies one "formed in the hollow ground a little to the south of Stirlings Road," and running eastward to Taylor Street (Ib. p. 478). It was early the custom to convert burns into sewers, and, therefore, it may be assumed that the old ditch was adapted to that purpose and became the Stirlings Road sewer.

said acre; and (second) to Thomas Colquhoun, brother german of q. John Colquhoun of Glen, an acre of open land, lying in the croft called Provandside, between the lands of the chaplainry of the Holy Rood, then belonging to Mr. Andrew Haye, on the west, the lands of q. Mr. James Blair on the east, the goit on the south, and the loyne (vicum lie loyne) on the north. Sasine given by William Lychtbody, bailie of the subdean of Glasgow, lord superior of the lands. Witnesses: Mr. Adam Wallace and Thomas Diksoun, citizens. HENRY GIBSON.
Vol. II. fol. 176.

¹ The charter was confirmed by the crown on 28 March, 1575 (Reg. Mag. Sig. iv. No. 2407). As there quoted, the Bishop's charter bears to have been granted in consideration of the great expenses and labours of Lord Boyd in upholding the privilege of the regality, and his thorough administration of justice, which for many years had been neglected; and it was provided that the baillie should render to the archbishop the services due in respect of the office, and defend the archbishopric in all its lawful concerns. At the annual municipal election in October following his appointment to the bailliary, Lord Boyd was nominated for the provostship, by a commission under the hand of the archbishop. That document narrates "the habilite and qualificatioun of one noble lord Robert Lord Boyd, baillie of our barone of Glasgu, in ministratioun of justice wrychtill to all persounes," and states "that the office of provestre of the brucht and ciete of Glasgw hes nevyr or seyndill (i.e. seldom) bene separatit in sindry persounes handis fra the baillierie of oure baronie foirsaid" (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 22). This reference to the offices of baillie of the regality and provost of the burgh being usually combined in one person may have been applicable to the depute but not to the principal baillie, a conjunction which, so far as is known, only occurred in 1510-1, when the earl of Lennox was provost.

The barony of Glasgow and a large district towards the east, known as Bishopforest, were erected into a regality under a charter granted by King James II. to the bishop and his successors, dated 20 April, 1450. The holding of courts and the exercise of other privileges usually appertaining to regalities were conferred by the charter; and these, according to the institutional writers, included the power of appointing bailies possessing heritable jurisdiction. Erskine says: "It was singular in this high jurisdiction that the lord of regality might appoint deputies, called stewards or bailies, not only during pleasure or for life, but heritable, who had, by that deputation, all the profits incident to the jurisdiction made over in perpetuum to themselves and their heirs" (Institute of the Law of Scotland, B. I., t. iv., s. 7). No record of an appointment to the Glasgow bailliary in the 15th century is known to be extant, but it is believed that for a long period the earls of Lennox held the office. In proceedings before the privy council on 14 May, 1578, it is stated that Mathew earl of Lennox (the Regent) had been baillie, and that "his guidshire, grandsire, foirgrandsire, and all utheris his foirbearis, wer kyndlle baillies of the samyn (i.e., they possessed the office by 'kyndlle' tenure), and broukit the office thair of past all memory" (Privy Council Reg. ii. p. 607). During the time Earl Mathew was in exile (1545-64) the Earl of Arran held the appointment, but on the restoration of Lennox to royal favour in 1564, he was reinstated in the office (Ib. i. p. 291. Glasgow Charters I. pp. lxxxii, lxxxvii, dxi; II. p. 125). On being promoted to the regency, Lennox could not conveniently exercise the office, and he accordingly devolved it on Sir John Steward of Mynto. In the proceedings of the privy council already referred to (14 May, 1578), it was represented on behalf of King James VI., grandson and heir of the Regent, that Robert lord Boyd had "in thir last troubles . . . in the moneth of November 1573, intrusit himself in possessioun of the said baillierie, usit the office thairof, and dispossest . . . Sir Johne Stewart fra that rowme, in the quhilk he was placeit be the said umquhile Erll, and will not suffer him entir thairto without he be compellit, to the hurt and prejudice of his Hienes and of the personis his kyndlie subjectis in the said jurisdiction." After considering the case, the privy council ordered "our Soverane Lord as erll of Levenax" to be repossessed in the office (P.O.R. II. pp. 697-8). Subsequently, the heritable bailliarie was again conferred on the Lennox family, and it continued with them till the fallure of lineal heirs, when King Charles II. succeeded. In 1673 the office was bestowed on William duke of Hamilton, an interesting description of whose investiture, by the delivery of "a broad sword of justice and other symbols," is given by M'Ure, the Glasgow historian, who was one of the witnesses. When M'Ure published his history (1736) the Duke of Montrose was bailie, and it is mentioned that "his deputies or their substitutes sit three times a week in session time, and hold their court in the justice court hall of the city" (M'Ure's History, 1830 edition, pp. 79-81). By the act 20 Geo. II. c. 43, abolishing heritable jurisdictions, the bailliarie terminated in 1748. In 1772 there was a proposal for its partial revival, as on 20 February of that year the town council recommended that application should be made to the crown for a "deputation of the office of bailliarie of the baronie and regality of Glasgow" in favour of the provost and his successors "to the end a legal cheque may be put to the commission of crimes in and about the city of Glasgow and the offenders punished in terms of law" (MS. Council Rec. xxix. p. 564); but the proposal did not receive effect.

¹ The institution of Sir John Mwne as rector of Askirk in 1560 is narrated in protocol No. 1399. He appears also to have held the office of preceptor of St. Nicholas' Hospital both before and after that date. The first property mentioned in No. 2091 and the three annualrents were resigned by Sir John in favour of James Mwn on 29 July, 1560 (No. 574), but he had apparently been reinvested.

Mr. John Davidson demitted the perpetual vicarage of the parish of Colmonell,¹ and renounced all right thereto in favour of the pedagogy and university of Glasgow, to remain with the masters residing there, for ever, conform to the tenor of a union made thereon in better form. 2113. UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW. 5 January, 1574-5, 11 a.m.

Mr. John Davidsoun, minister of Hammiltoun,² for himself, and as

¹ The vicarage of Colmanell, in the deanery of Carrick, Ayrshire, is entered in Baimund's Roll (A.D. 1275) as a possession of the see of Glasgow, valued at £40 yearly (Reg. Episc. Glasg. p. lxi). On 24 January, 1557-8, the archbishop of Glasgow annexed the vicarage to the "pedagogy or university of Glasgow," and masters and regents therein; and sasine was given to Mr. John Davidson, principal regent, in their name (Munimenta Alme Universitatis, i. p. 62). By the charter from the magistrates and council to the college in 1572, referred to in next footnote, it was provided that, under the re-arrangement then made, the principal should possess the vicarage "in room of salary or honorarium" (Glasg. Charters, ii. p. 154). On 6 May, 1570, Mr. John Davidsoun, designed as "principal regent of the pedagogy and university of Glasgow, and perpetual vicar of the parish church of Colmonell," with consent of the dean and chapter of Glasgow, granted the glebe and church lands belonging to the vicarage to Gilbert Kennedy, brother german of the late Thomas Kennedy of Bargany, and his spouse, for payment of the yearly feu-duty of 40 s., and the grant was confirmed by crown charter, dated 23 November, 1574 (Reg. Mag. Sig. iv. No. 2332). Simultaneously with the grant of 1570 thus confirmed, a lease of the vicarage, with glebe, kirkland, teinds, &c., was given by the vicar to Kennedy, for nineteen years, at the yearly rent of £42 13 s. 4 d., out of which the sum of £16 yearly was to be paid to a vicar pensioner (Munimenta, p. 81). In the rental of the "Auld Foundatioun of the College" in 1575 the vicarage is put down as yielding £42 13 s. 4 d. yearly.

² It has been stated by historians and biographers that Mr. John Davidson, principal regent of the college, was a different person from Mr. John Davidson, minister of Hamilton, but there is good reason to believe that it was the same individual who filled these offices. Regent Davidson is supposed to have belonged to the north of Scotland, and to have been born about 1520. Educated for the church, he passed some time at Paris University, and returned to this country about 1550. On 13 March, 1556-7, he is designated "Master Johne Davidsone, pensionar of the personage of Kinkell, wythin the diocess of Aberdeine, principall regent of the said (i.e., Glasgow) Universite and Pedagoge thairof" (Munimenta i. p. 61). After the Reformation, Davidson for some time adhered to the old faith, but eventually joined the protestant party. In 1563, he published "Ane answer to the Compendious Tractive of Mr. Quintin Kennedy, abbot of Crossragael," a controversial paper which has been reprinted by the Wodrow Society (Miscellany, p. 177), with a biographical sketch by Dr. David Laing. After 1572 his identification as "principal regent" ceases.

"Mr. John Davidson, minister of Hamilton," is found in the Register of Ministers for the year 1567, possessing a stipend of £120; and he is traced in General Assembly proceedings and elsewhere as incumbent of that parish till near the close of the century. Dr. Laing expressly states that the "minister" was not the "principal regent"; while Dr. M'Crie, in his life of Andrew Melville, assumes that Davidson had died before Melville was installed his successor. The facts narrated in protocols 2112 and 2113 are, however, inconsistent with these views.

After the change of religion, the university appears to have been deserted by the benefited clergy connected with it; and "among other losses and misfortunes of our city," it was perceived that the schools and colleges were "wholly going to ruin" (Glasgow Charters, ii. p. 149). The town council and community thereupon came to the rescue and, re-endowing the college with the ecclesiastical revenues which they had obtained under Queen Mary's charter, made provision for the maintenance of a principal, two regents, and twelve administrator for Margaret Davidsoun, his daughter, renounced in favour of the university and pedagogy of Glasgow, and masters and regents therein, all their right to a great fore tenement, called Arthurleis place, with yard adjacent, lying t.c., near the pedagogy, and formerly falling to them. Sasine given by George Elphinstoun, bailie, to Mr. Andrew Melvyng,¹ principal and in name of the said university and pedagogy, to remain with him and the regents and masters therein for ever. Done on the ground of the tenement. Witnesses: John Neving of Kirkwod, Mr. Thomas Jak, Mr. Peter Blakburn,² and Donald Moresone.

poor students. This was in January, 1572-3, by which time Davidson had probably, in consequence of interruption to active duty in Glasgow, betaken himself to Hamilton. For some part of the period between 1572 and 1574 Mr. Peter Blakburn acted as regent. On 29 April of the latter year he got sasine in a manse in name of the university and of the principal and regents (Protocol No. 2044).

Arthurleis place, which, as narrated in 2113, was renounced by the "minister of Hammiltoun," was gifted to the college by Sir Thomas of Arthurle, chaplain, in 1466-7 (Munimenta i. p. 18). In 1561-2, Masters John Davidson and Robert Hamilton, regents, assigned the property to Robert Lyndesay and spouse for 6½ merks yearly (Protocol No. 683), and in 1564, Robert Lyndesay of Dunrod resigned it "in favour of Mr. John Davidsone, principal regent of the pedagogy of Glasgow" (Ib. No. 1500). On this title, so far as can be ascertained, the property remained till 1574, when "Mr. Johne Davidsone, minister in Hammiltoun," resigned it in favour of Margaret Davidsone, his daughter (Ib. No. 2074); but, as narrated in the above protocol (No. 2113), it was restored to the college. These transfers go far to prove the identity of the "principal regent" with the "minister"; and, indeed, it is difficult to see how Davidson could have acquired any interest in "Arthurle's place" otherwise than through his connection with the university.

¹Andrew Melville, the eminent scholar and leader of the Presbyterian party, was appointed principal of Glasgow College in November, 1574, and remained till 1580, when he removed to St. Andrews. In the Memoirs of his nephew, James Melville, it is said, "We cam to Glasgow about the first of November, 1574, where we fand Mr. Peter Blakburn, a guid man, new come from St. Androis, entered in the college, and begun to teache, conform to the ordour of the course of Sanct Androis. But Mr. Andro entering principall maister, all was committed and submitted to him; who permitted willinglie to the said Mr. Peter the care of the college leving, quhillk was verie small, consisting in litle annuales then, and set him haillelie to teache things nocht hard in this cuntry of befoir" (James Melville's Diary, p. 48).

²Peter Blakburn, referred to in the two preceding footnotes, was a son of Archibald Blakburn, citizen of Glasgow, and Janet Colquhoun, spouses (Protocols 1974, 2045). He was a regent of Glasgow college, both before and after Melville's arrival, was subsequently minister in Aberdeen, and died, bishop of that diocese, in 1615 (Keith's Catalogue, p. 131).

Archibald Blakburne had an elder son by a former marriage. On 23 February, 1573-4, a brief of the archbishop's chancellor (see footnote antea, p. 50) was produced in the burgh court, with a claim on behalf of "James Blakburne, eldest lachfull son to umquhill Archibald Blakburne, burges of Glasgow," asking that he should be served heir "to all movable airschip that pertent to him as burges air." This claim was submitted to an inquest composed of 15 persons, and was "proclomit at the tolbuyth windo," when "maister Petir Blakburn, alsua sone to the said umquhill Archibald," appeared and "allegit becaus the said James was duelland in strange cuntry, and aliene, aucht nocht to be servit." The objection was, however, repelled, and the inquest "servit and enterit the said James Blakburn, as nerrest of lyne and blude, and eldest lachfull son to the said umquhill Archibald, and air gottin betuix him and umquhill [Katherine] Mayne, spoussis, and haveand onlie rycht to his movable airschip guddis had be him the tyme of his deceis" (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 4). In May following, a question was raised in the burgh court as to whether "ane pair walker scheria," which had belonged to Archibald Blakburne, formed part of the "airschip" or of ordinary movables (Ib. p. 10). See also protocol No. 2018, narrating the vesting of property in James Blakburne, as heir of his father and mother, "Mr. Peter Blakburn" being one of the witnesses.

A service in favour of Peter Blakburne, as heir of his father and mother, in two annualrents, is thus recorded a "burges at has had syndry wyffis," will be found in Leges Burgorum, c. 24 (Burgh Record edition, p. 12). Sir John Skene, in De Verborum Significatione, explains the rules thus:—"Be the lawes of the burrowes, gif an burgesse have maa wives nor ane, and bairnes procreat of ilk ane of them, all the lands perteing to him, be reason of heretage, or conquest in the tyme of his first wife, suld perteine to the bairne gotten with her in the first marriage; and all the landes conquest be him the tyme of his second wife sall perteine to the bairne gotten with her in the second marriage."

sonally attend to the spiritual needs of the people, to pay David Wemys, the minister of Glasgow, and his successors, £200 of yearly stipend out of the benefice. The barn mentioned in the text was probably acquired by the rector for storage of teind sheaves.

Robert Colvill, attorney and in name of Elizabeth Boyde, daughter of Robert lord Boyde, produced a charter whereby John Conygham of Drumquhassall granted to her, in liferent (1) the £5 land, o.e.,¹ of Killermont, with the pertinents, lying in the parish of Kilpatrick and shire of Dumbertane, extending in yearly profit, besides poultry and services (preter pultras et servicia) to 4 chalders and 5 bolls of victual; (2) the 40s. land, o.e., of Blayrfad, with the pertinents, occupied by Nicholas Conygham, lying in the parish of Drymmen and shire of Stirling, extending in yearly profit to 18 bolls meal, besides poultry and other services; (3) an annualrent of 9 bolls good and sufficient barley, yearly, payable furth of the lands of Eister Mugdok Michell, or any part thereof, lying in the parish of Strablane, in the shire of [Stirling];² (4) an annualrent of 20 stones good and sufficient cheese,³ upliftable yearly furth of the 40s. land, o.e., of Ladynrew, with the pertinents, or any part thereof, lying in the parish of (blank) and earldom of Lennox; (5) the 40s. land, o.e., of Parkistoun, authorised the chamberlain to settle "either by a new extent or by the old register." It seems evident that in the cases cited the "old extent" was the valuation previous to the English wars which followed the death of King Alexander III.; but see Mr. Thomas Thomson's famous Memorial in Cranston v. Gibson (Session Papers, 1818).

¹ Old extent. As supplementary to the remarks on extents in footnote, antea p. 60, reference may be made to Bain's Calendar of Documents relating to Scotland, ii. Nos. 1457, 1884; iii. Nos. 30, 245, 461. On 22 February, 1803-4, at an inquisition before the sheriff of Stirling, it was found that the lands of "Calentir" (Callander) were "worth yearly in time of peace, £40, and now £8 6s. 8d.," and that the lands of "Kelynsithe" (Killyth) were "worth yearly in time of peace, £80, and at present £12." In 1806-7, Huwe de Champane petitioned the English king and his council for mitigation of certain claims for his lands in Galloway, asking that these should be settled on the basis of the "present value, not the old valuation before the Scottish war, as they have been so wasted thereby." The deliverance

³ Cheese as reddendo is not uncommon in feu charters. When payable to the crown the commutation value, as fixed by the lords of exchequer in 1596, was 30s.; and according to a Table of Conversions, in use before the Union, 26s. 8d. (Innes' Legal Antiquities, p. 66).

2133. CRAIG—FREBARNE—LYONE. 24 February, 1574-5, 2 p.m.

Archibald Lyoun, bailie and citizen, with consent of Margaret Dunlop, his spouse,¹ granted in feu-farm to James Craig, baker, citizen, and (blank) Frebarne, spouses, a piece of arable land, extending to 12 ells in breadth and 27 ells in length, being part of an acre of land belonging to the granters, lying t.c., in the croft called Egleschemis Croft,² between the lands or yard sometime of John Haustoun and Mathew Heriot on the south, the lands of q. Richard Ros on the north, the lands of q. Mathew Heriot on the east, and the burn of Malindoner on the west; which piece of land by Archibald Lyon, in 1560 (protocol, No. 550); and as it was bounded on the north by lands already belonging to him, the latter must have bordered on the Gallowgate.

² Eagleshame or "Eglishams" Croft formed the north-western corner of what is supposed to have been Conclud, a 12th century possession of the see of Glasgow. Adjoining portions of these lands had been bestowed on St. Nicholas Hospital, the vicars of the choir and certain chaplainries; and it may be conjectured that the croft itself had been at one time an endowment of the rector of Eagleshame, the south-eastmost parish in Renfrewshire, thereby acquiring its designation. "Eglisham" first appears on record in a charter by King Malcolm IV. (confirming a grant by King David) to Walter the Steward in 1157-8. From the high steward the estate passed to the Montgomery family; and about the year 1430, Sir Alexander Montgomery consented to the church being erected by Bishop Cameron into a prebend for a canon of Glasgow cathedral (Origines Parochiales, i. pp. 99, 508. Reg. Episc. Glasg. No. 340). If the croft was really assigned to the parson of Eagleshame, he appears to have conveyed it in small lots to several purchasers or rentallors. In 1496, Martin Wan, chancellor of the metropolitan church, gave to a chaplainry an acre of land in the croft "commonly called Eglesamezcroft" (Ib. No. 473); while James Houstoun, founder of the collegiate church of St. Mary and St. Anne, acquired other portions of the croft which were included among the endowments of his church in 1548 (Liber Ecclesie Collegiate, pp. 101, 112). There are likewise several protocols narrating transfers of lots in the croft.

Witnesses: John Young, David Adame, merchants, citizens, and James Andersoun and Robert Lettrik, officers.

¹ As shown by crown charters, the lands of Fulbar and Sergeantlaw, in Paisley parish, belonged for a long time to successive generations of the Hall family. When Crawford wrote his History of Renfrewshire (published in 1710), they were still proprietors, and it is stated that they had settled there at least as early as the year 1370. The possessions of the family in the burgh of Glasgow can likewise be traced back for a considerable period. In Munimenta Fratrum Predicatorum, published by the Maitland Club (pp. 195-8), there is printed an Indenture, dated 25 June, 1485, whereby "Robyne of Hall of the Fulbare" gave certain annualrents from his Glasgow properties to the prior and convent of the Friars Preachers of Glasgow for masses to be said at St. Katrine's altar, in the "Freyr Kyrk," for the souls of himself and his relatives. Special directions were given with regard to the ceremonies and the ringing of "Sanct Mungowis bell," while the officiating Friars were each to have "a galloun of gud ayll (witht brede and cheese), to their collacion."

The transfer of the orchard narrated in protocol 2145 appears to have been preliminary to its disposal, in lots, as described in 2147. A tower and fortalice had stood hitherto on the grounds (see protocols 80 and 915), the buildings being doubtless used as the town mansion of the lairds of Fulbar.

"Foulbar" appears in Blaeu's Atlas (1662), but in modern maps its place is taken by "Foxbar," to which the name seems to have been transformed.

in a treasonable plot, and was executed at Edinburgh in February, 1584-5 (Ib. pp. 347-9).

² About this time John Cunynghame of Drumquhassill resigned the lands of "Killermont" in favour of John Cunynghame, his son and apparent heir, and Elizabeth Boyd, spouses, in conformity with a contract of marriage between Robert, lord Boyd, and Elizabeth, his daughter, on the one part, and the two Cunynghames on the other part. The lands were confirmed to the spouses by crown charter dated 6 February, 1575-6 (R.M.S. iv., No. 2512). See also protocol No. 2127.

Done on the ground of the said place. Witnesses: Thomas Pettigrew, citizen, James Andersone, Robert Lettrik and John Stobo, officers.

2243. CHALMERIS—MURRAYE. 24 December, 1575, 1 p.m.

Walter Waware and Margaret Buchquhannane, spouses, acknowledged that

The Grey Friars do not appear to have been settled in Glasgow till the reign of King James III., who, by a charter dated 21 December, 1479, confirmed to the "Friars Minors" the sites which they possessed in Edinburgh, St. Andrews, Aberdeen, and Glasgow (R. M. S. ii. No. 1434). The Glasgow site is there stated to have been gifted by John, bishop of Glasgow, with consent of his chapter, and by Mr. Thomas Fersithe, rector of Glasgow. Bishop John's episcopate extended from 1473 to 1483, so that the monastery must have been founded between 1473 and 1479. It will be observed from the text, as well as from protocol 1217, that the land on the west side of the monastery belonged to the rector or parson of Glasgow, and therefore it is not improbable that the site was taken from part of the parsonage lands, thus accounting for Fersithe being a party to the foundation. There is very little on record regarding the history of the Grey Friars in Glasgow. Adhering to their original vow of poverty, they do not seem to have been possessed of any extraneous property, and consequently had no title deeds. Nor is there much to be got from other sources. In the year 1539, Jerome Russell, a Grey Friar, was burnt in Glasgow for "heresy," but it does not seem to be clear that he belonged to the city. (See works of John Knox, edited by Dr. Laing, i. pp. 63-6) Though the first notice that has been found of the breaking up of the monastery is dated 19 June, 1560 (see protocol 1370) it is not improbable that the buildings were demolished, and the friars dispersed, in the summer or autumn of 1559, when such outbreaks were general throughout the country. Conventions of the lords of the congregation were intermittently held in the city in August and subsequent months; and in March, 1559-60, there was skirmishing between the protestants and the French auxiliaries (Bain's Calendar of Scottish Papers, 1898, i. pp. 239-63, 336). In February, 1561-2, the privy council authorised Glasgow and other burghs to appropriate the places which had been possessed by Friars (Privy Council Reg. i. p. 202); and by Queen Mary's charter of 1566-7 the whole possessions of the Franciscans in Glasgow were conveyed to the magistrates and council (Glasg. Charters, i. p. 132). John Stewart of Mynto who, according to the above protocol, owned the place of the Greyfriars in 1575, probably acquired it, as he did some of the property of the collegiate church of St. Mary, in return for payment of rent or feu-duty; and if so, the college would become entitled to the annual revenue when the church possessions were transferred to that body in 1572-3 (Ib. p. 149). In an early college rental of church properties there is a charge of 40s., payable by "John Conyngnam for the Gray Freir yaird," and a note to the effect that in 1614 "this yaird was agmentit viij li." (Munimenta i. p. 178).

In the Plan appended to Vol. I. of Glasgow Protocols the place of the Greyfriars is represented as lying between the High Street and the vennel sometime called Greyfriars Wynd and now Shuttle Street. The actual site appears to have been west of the vennel.

Walter Graye, notary and citizen,¹ produced a charter whereby the provest, bailies, council, and community, granted to him in feu-farm a piece of land, lying t.e., in the common bog (communi mericio sive loco palustri, vulgo nuncupato lie commune bog) extending to a half acre of land or thereby, between the lands of William Hegait, citizen, on the west, the hill of *Cowcaldanis alias Symmerhill*² on the south, the highway which led to the city's colliery (carbonarium nostre civilatis) on the east, and the common muir on the north. William Conyghame and Mr. Adam Wallace, bailies, were directed to give sasine. Charter sealed with the city's common seal, and subscribed at Glasgow, 14 January, 1575-6, by "Robert Boyde, provest, Williame Conyghame, bailie, George Elphinstoune, Archibald Lioun, master Adam Wallace, George Herbertsoun, Johne Wilsoun, Cuthbert

² The court of "perambulation of marches" was held at "the Symmerhill" on Sunday, 20 June, 1574. At this meeting, and likewise at another held at the same place on Sunday, 24 June, 1576, the magistrates, council and community passed various statutes affecting the commonweal of the burgh (Glasg. Rec. i. pp. 16, 52). It may have been on account of these gatherings, of unknown but probably ancient origin, having been held there at midsummer, that the hill got its name.

Sunday appears to have been the usual day for assembling, but in 1590 "the raid of the Sumerhill" was postponed to a Tuesday, 23 June, "for the observatioun of the Sabbath day" (Ib. p. 152). Weaponshawings, which by the act of parliament, 1540, c. 21, were appointed to be held in June and October yearly, were occasionally combined with the day's proceedings. Thus, on 21 March, 1577-8, the magistrates and council "appoyntit thair wapynschawing, according to thair statute, to be on the day of Symmerhill nixt" (Ib. p. 67); and on 18 June, 1601, it was ordered that the "hail inhabitantis, fremen, burgessis, salbe in redynes with thair armour, on futte, upoun Weddnesdaye morning, being the Symmerhill daye, and the provest, bailleis, and counsale, and deikines, to be on horsbak" (Ib. p. 223).

By the above protocol Symmerhill is identified as part of the Cowcaddens lands. It frequently appears in the town's rental as let for grazing, but in the year 1656 the magistrates and council appointed "the gersie of the Simerhill, and the lone that passes to the Woodayd, not to be sett heirefter, bot to lye for the use of the towne kye allanerlie, and non others to cleame right thairto." (Ib. ii. p. 315). The precise locality, and subsequent history of the hill, have yet to be traced.
